BioSpectrum the business of Bio & Health Sciences ASIA EDITION

Ping An Good Doctor, BDMS announce strategic cooperation

November 15, 2018 | News

The alliance will provide a reliable and comprehensive overseas consultation process which will improve the standards of medical tourism and set an international medical collaboration model.

China's leading one-stop healthcare ecosystem platform, Ping An Good Doctor has announced a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) with Bangkok Dusit Medical Service (BDMS), the largest healthcare network in Thailand. The two medical service giants will integrate and exchange their experienced medical resources online and offline, and provide one-stop healthcare services for millions of Chinese patients.

Through the combination of hundreds of millions of online users' data from Ping An Good Doctor and advanced offline medical services from BDMS, the collaboration between the two parties will provide a set of integrated solutions. The alliance will provide a reliable and comprehensive overseas consultation process which will improve the standards of medical tourism and set an international medical collaboration model.

The strategic cooperation with BDMS is an important step for Ping An Good Doctor in its internationalization strategy.