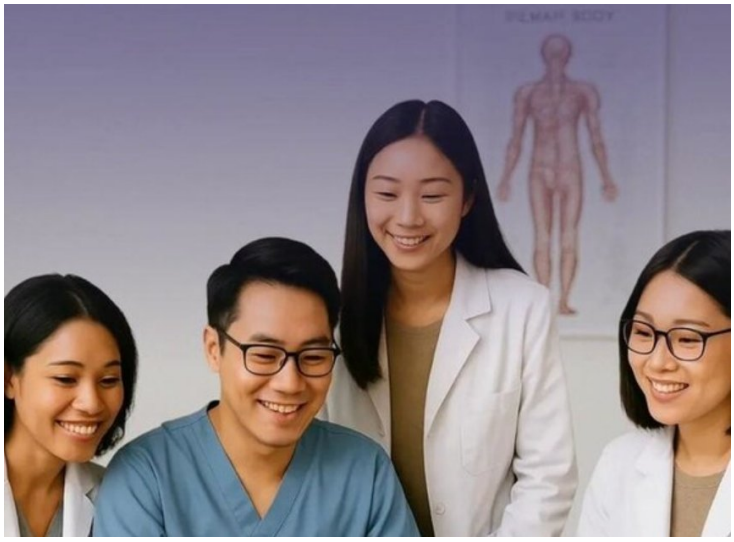
Emagene Life Academy launches in Malaysia to advance functional medicine education

January 27, 2026 | News

Equipping practitioners with practical tools and empowering individuals with evidence-based knowledge



Emagene Life, a leading functional medicine and longevity practice in Malaysia, has officially launched the Emagene Life Academy, marking a major milestone in the advancement of functional medicine education in the region.

The Emagene Life Academy is designed as a regional centre for functional medicine education, supporting healthcare professionals, wellness practitioners, and allied health specialists seeking deeper, clinically relevant training.

Aligned with the internationally respected curriculum of the Institute for Functional Medicine (IFM), the Emagene Life Academy provides structured functional medicine training, hands-on practical workshops, and continuing professional education. The Academy empowers practitioners to deliver personalised, evidence-based care across diverse clinical and real-world settings, while contextualising global best practices for Asian populations.

The Academy also serves as a collaborative knowledge hub, bringing together clinicians, nutritionists, researchers, and health educators to elevate standards in functional and longevity medicine across the region.

Future Academy initiatives will include additional workshops, structured practitioner programmes, and continuing education pathways designed to support both healthcare professionals and health-conscious individuals.
