

Congo declares new Ebola outbreak

02 August 2018 | News

The area also has strong trade with neighbouring Rwanda and Uganda, raising the risk of the virus moving internationally.

Singapore – Four people have tested positive for Ebola in eastern Democratic Republic of Congo just a week after another outbreak that killed 33 people in the northwest was declared over.

Twenty people have already died from hemorrhagic fevers in and around Mangina. The area also has strong trade with neighboring Rwanda and Uganda, raising the risk of the virus moving internationally.