The strategic partnership involves multiple business segments of Ping An Good Doctor, including family doctor services, AI technology and health mall.

China's leading one-stop healthcare ecosystem platform, Ping An Good Doctor recently announced its strategic partnership with Jointown Pharmaceutical Group Co., Ltd., a leading pharmaceutical company in China.

Taking advantage of Ping An Good Doctor's innovative technologies such as big data and AI technology, as well as Jointown's advanced supply chain in medicines and other health products, the two companies will consolidate their respective business resources to empower China's primary medical institutions and pharmacies, establishing an "internet + healthcare + medicine" service chain system.

The strategic partnership involves multiple business segments of Ping An Good Doctor, including family doctor services, AI technology and health mall. Looking ahead, Ping An Good Doctor will transfer its mobile medical technologies and AI consulting capabilities to Jointown's downstream primary medical institutions, pharmacies and e-commerce pharmacist platform and work with its partners inside the ecosystem to extend their businesses across the healthcare industry chain, formulating a self-contained service system that integrates online and offline resources.
