The annual medical forum held by the Asia Pacific Medical Technology Association (APACMed) brings more than 1,000 delegates together, making it one of the largest yearly forums in Asia Pacific.

The current crisis is seen as an opportune time to explore new forum experiences for these delegates, resulting in the decision to hold the forum in a virtual format for the first time ever.

As the medical industry has been at the forefront of the fight against Covid-19, this year's forum will be addressing what agility means for the MedTech industry and how agility can help healthcare companies adapt more quickly to changing customer needs, competitor responses and regulatory guidelines.

Harjit Gill, Chief Executive Officer, Asia Pacific Medical Technology Association (APACMed) has expressed the importance of uniting the healthcare industry, "The COVID-19 pandemic has unleashed an unprecedented wave of creativity and collaboration across the healthcare value chain: from rapid regulatory approval to supply chain collaboration. This wave of innovation - and the potential lessons being learned - risk being lost unless we have a platform to discuss and share."

Agility for the MedTech Industry

Addressing what agility means for the MedTech industry, the APACMed Virtual Forum 2020 will focus on how agility can help healthcare companies adapt more quickly to changing customer needs, competitor responses and regulatory guidelines.

The worldwide COVID-19 pandemic has intensified conversations around universal healthcare as well as cooperation between public and private sectors. For this reason, this year’s forum aims to unite healthcare stakeholders, and to improve through increased collaboration the quality of healthcare across the region, with the assistance of emerging platforms that demonstrate the value of innovative medical technology.

Through plenaries and breakout sessions, the Forum will seek to address how these new forces provide unparalleled opportunities in solving unmet needs in Asia Pacific.

A Digital Conference with a Global Reach

This year for the first time ever, APACMed has virtualized its flagship regional event. Making full use of both emerging and established digital technologies to engage participants in real-time.

The format illustrates the digital transformation happening in the Medtech industry, allowing for an immersive experience and opportunity to engage with global leaders from across the healthcare ecosystem.
