BioSpectrum
the business of Bio & Health Sciences
ASIA EDITION

Thailand recognises 3 academic achievements in medical science

August 28, 2020 | News

The DMSc award provided an opportunity for scientific, medical and research personnel an ideal platform to submit their research work.

Thailand's Department of Medical Sciences Director-General, Dr. Opas Karnkawinpong revealed thatat the 28th Medical Science Conference, Department of Medical Sciences, academic works were selected to award the DMSc Award, which provides an opportunity for scientific, medical and research personnel to have a platform to submit their work.

The 3 categories were; Research and development in medical science; Types of medical science books and textbooks; and Types of service development or development of service quality in medical science

Department of Medical Sciences The Ministry of Public Health awards the 2020 DMSc Award for 3 outstanding academic achievements were;

1. Nanoparticle Design for Applications in Nanoscale Medicine.

2. Book of hip fracture in the elderly

3. Development of the study and research and development of health products in laboratory animals according to the OECD GLP principles, which is the result of the development of medical science and public health that can solve the public health problems of the country.