I Holland restructures the leadership team to strengthen operations

March 2, 2021 | News

With Javier Raposo being the new MD, the new Board of Directors consists of six highly-experienced team members with extensive research, development, and investment capabilities

England's I Holland, leaders in the manufacture of tablet tooling for the pharmaceutical and nutraceutical markets, has announced a series of appointments to form a new senior management team to lead the company moving forward.

The new Board of Directors consists of six highly-experienced team members many of which remain from the previous management team. David Hinds has handed over the baton of Managing Director to Javier Raposo but will continue to serve on the Board as Non-Executive Director.

Having served as I Holland Sales and Marketing Director for the last five years, Javier will head up the new leadership structure, he said: “It’s a huge honour to have been appointed Managing Director at I Holland. I look forward to working alongside my fellow Board members and company management to turn a new chapter of growth and drive forward the fundamental principles that make the brand so unique.”

Steve Deakin, Customer Service Director, will remain on the board and take up the position of Non-Executive Chairman. Rob Chatwin remains in his position as Finance and IT Director, with Dan Fitzsimmons continuing as Regional Managing Director of Asia Pacific. Matt Pullen takes up the position of Operations Director following time spent as Director of Manufacturing.

Javier said: “We are extremely excited about the bright future ahead of all of us. We would like to thank the exiting Directors for their hard work and dedication that has made I Holland the undisputed leader in our industry, providing the best solutions to our customers’ production challenges.

“I Holland sets, and will continue to set, the industry standards for quality, lead time, support and value. With an exceptional team of experienced staff on-board and a committed network of agents, we look forward to building on the foundations built over the last 75 years and working to strengthen operations even further in the future.”

I Holland’s extensive research, development and investment has established the company as the pre-eminent supplier of punches and dies to producers of tablets across the globe.

Their commitment to the development of innovative materials and products, combined with state-of-the-art Quality Assurance Technology and unmatched customer service, has seen I Holland’s solutions being successfully adopted by customers in more than 90 countries worldwide.
