BioSpectrum the business of Bio & Health Sciences ASIA EDITION

Job Alert : Medical Reviewer at Alcon, Malaysia

July 7, 2021 | News

Responsible for the scientific accuracy, clinical information, and bio- statistical validity of content and claims in the promotional materials.

Alcon
SEE BRILLIANTLY

Apply Now!

Develops and provides to the company, its customers, and the government medical and technical information relating to the company's marketed products. Provides, reviews, and ensures medical activities (including promotional support, operational reviews and planning, and clinical protocols) are implemented in alignment with product strategies, and in compliance with regulatory policies and guidelines. Contributes to the development, review, and approval of clinical protocols.

Execute the Medical strategy through medical review for assigned products in Alcon’s therapeutic domains. Responsible for the scientific accuracy, clinical information, and bio- statistical validity of content and claims in the promotional materials. Assure accuracy and compliance with labelling of promotional and advertising materials in their assigned therapeutic areas. The position may include cross-functional engagement with regional marketing, regulatory, legal and compliance

Major Accountabilities

- Provide the medical review of promotional materials, advertising materials, patient education materials and HCP slides in accordance with approved labeling and compliance with applicable regulations and industry standards that support effective and safe use of Alcon products by patients and the medical community
- Provide medical review addressing the scientific accuracy, clinical information, and bio-statistical validity of promotional materials
- Provide medical review of concept/draft advertising and promotional materials
- Remain current with medical literature in assigned therapeutic areas
- Provide accurate and consistent medical review of advertising and promotional materials on time and minimize review cycles for material approval
- Work with cross-functional team supporting review of advertising and promotional materials and with Medical team in assigned therapeutic areas to optimize effectiveness and mitigate risk of promotional claims

- Be a subject matter expert on PromoMat review compliance policies. Assist with the resolution of compliance issues / questions in partnership with the business

Education / Experience

- Advanced degree in life sciences / Optometry studies/technical/scientific BS/MS degree in the clinical/life sciences with extensive knowledge in ophthalmic therapeutic areas
- >2 years of experience in a combination of academic or medical device industry experience
- >2 years of experience in providing medical review of promotional and advertising materials preferred
- Strong understanding of and commitment to compliance including knowledge of ICH, GCP, local and regional guidelines and regulations on interactions with HCPs, and other ethical guidelines relevant to the pharmaceutical and/or medical device industry.
- Demonstrated ability to work in a matrix leadership environment
- Analytical skills and ability to interpret scientific data correctly
- Strong collaboration and communication skills

Apply Now!