Bridgewest India is recruiting top-level talent, spanning a multitude of expertise

Global private investment firm, Bridgewest Group, recognised for developing innovative companies in life sciences, software, and deep tech, has announced the grand opening of new operational Centre of Excellence in Hyderabad, India. The Global Capability Centre (GCC), Bridgewest India will bring vast operational resources and economies of scale to the growing suite of portfolio companies for worldwide private equity firm Bridgewest Group.

Laxman Settipalli, General Manager and Head of Bridgewest India is the driving force behind the new Center. "We're seeing lots of engagement from companies and lots of interest from great local talent," said Laxman. "Hyderabad India is recognized as India's premier pharma, IT and innovation hub," said Laxman.

Bridgewest India is recruiting top-level talent, spanning a multitude of expertise across technology, operations, and corporate functions. "HR, legal, R & D, marketing, sales, programme management, engineering, finance, and local governance teams are customised to the business needs at hand. Performance, agility and value gives us the edge in high-growth technology and pharma sectors," added Laxman.

Australia-based sterile injectable drug manufacturing company and Bridgewest Group life sciences company, NovaCina, is already seeing the value in partnering with Bridgewest India. "The sales and marketing talent has the right experience and mindset for NovaCina. The high-productivity is enabling NovaCina to reach more customers and achieve top-line growth at a speed and scale that otherwise would be difficult and costly," said Tommy Broudy, Operating Partner, Bridgewest Group, life sciences portfolio.
