Singapore: In a move to venture into the global market, Australia's leading healthcare logistics provider STL Warehousing (STLW) has launched new services for the pharmaceutical, medical devices, healthcare warehousing and distribution services sectors. With this, it plans to continue expansion in Europe and along the US West Coast.

The company is currently involved in the development of Australia-based temperature controlled warehouses for its domestic and international clients supplying the Australian market.

"We understand that there is no room for error in medical devices and pharmaceutical product supply chains. We have developed an approach that understands and solves the real issues involved in the pharmaceutical and medical devices supply chain," Mr John Hogg, Managing Director, STL Warehousing said in a press statement.
