Singapore: The resulting merger will generate revenues close to $406 million and will have a product pipeline of more than 100 drugs.

Shasun shareholders is expected to own about 26 percent in the combined entity.

Under the terms, for every 16 shares held by shareholders in Shasun, they will get five Strides Arcolab shares.

Shasun has a strong portfolio of Active Pharmaceutical Ingredients (API). It is also noteworthy that last year Strides sold its injectable drugs business to US-based Mylan for $1.6 billion.

The combined entity will have 12 manufacturing facilities, out of which 6 of the facilities will cater to emerging markets.

The other six will include 3 USFDA approved finished dosage manufacturing facilities, 2 USFDA approved API manufacturing facilities, and 1 USFDA approved CRAMS facility.

The new entity will be in the top 15 listed Indian pharma companies.

Strides on September 29, 2014, announced its agreement with GMS Holdings whereby GMS will invest $21.9 million for a 25.1 percent stake in Stelis Biopharma, the biotech arm of Strides, to fund its Greenfield project.

Till date, Strides has invested $16.9 million in Stelis.

This month Strides also received its license from Gilead Sciences to produce generic sofosbuvir and investigational single tablet regimen of ledipasvir/sofosbuvir for treatment of chronic Hepatitis C.

Mr Abhaya Kumar, CEO and MD, Shasun stated, "...Strides and Shasun bring complementary strengths and shared values of developing products and market opportunities across geographies and the combination accelerates both scale and scope. We are confident that the vertically integrated new combination will deliver further additional value in the near term for all stakeholders above and beyond the strong gains we have achieved to date on our own."
