Pursuant to the agreement, GIC will make a total investment of HK$659 (or $85) million into the Company, including subscription for HK$465 million convertible bonds and HK$194 million (or $25 million) new shares, of which:

1. The conversion price for the convertible bonds is HK$17.2 per share at a coupon of 4 percent.

Mr Jin Xuekun, CEO of Bloomage BioTech, said, "The investment shows GIC's recognition on our track record and future potential as well as our strategy of building up aesthetic medical ecosystem in China, which not only provides the Company with additional capital, but also further enhances the Company's global operation, improving the cash flow and keeping the leverage ratio at an appropriate level. We believe that GIC's global resources, dedicated local team and extensive operational experience will drive the Company faster on its way to becoming the aesthetic medical leading player in China. With a solid financial position, Bloomage BioTech will be able to respond to market challenges more efficiently, achieve sizable and sustainable growth more effectively and create greater value for its shareholders."
