

Taipei firm to offer aerial medical tours

02 July 2014 | News | By BioSpectrum Bureau

Singapore: Taipei-based healthcare company, Show 101 Royal Health Care, announced its partnership with Aerospace Industrial Development Corp (AIDC) to offer aerial medical tourism services to its customers.

The healthcare firm said that the tour packages combined sightseeing with medical services. As per the deal, the international travelers, business travelers and retirees, can enjoy relaxing trips provided by AIDC, after they have used Show 101 facilities for physical checkups or medical beauty treatment.

The firm's spokesperson said that they were targeting customers from Japan, South Korea, Indonesia, Vietnam and Thailand. He added that this would help in boosting their sales and revenue, and at the same time offer opportunities for tourists to avail the best available medical services.

The healthcare firm owns chains of hospitals in Taiwan that provide medical services, including checkups and advanced treatments.