BioSpectrum
the business of Bio & Health Sciences
ASIA EDITION

The World Vaccine Congress returns to Barcelona and Spain_28Ã¢â?¬â?? 31 October, 2024

July 26, 2024 | News

Forum to convene experts and leaders from science, academia, start-ups, biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies making this event Europe's most attractive R&D conference

The World Vaccine Congress is all set to unravel in Barcelona and Spain from 28th – 31st October, this year.The four-day event at Fira de Barcelona Montjuic is expected to convene over 3,000 attendees, 280 speakers, 150 exhibitors, and a growing selection of the industry's most disruptive start-ups.

Global industry leaders and experts will convene in Barcelona to debate advancements in vaccine research and development. The forum is expected to explore a wide variety of vital and intriguing topics while addressing the current trends and challenges of the industry of this rapidly evolving industry. Additionally, the event provides excellent networking opportunities with other industry leading experts to broaden your horizons in a rapidly changing field.

The event provides its attendees with a holistic approach to the industry's deeper progression.The Congress is designed to bring together stakeholders from a diverse range of industries, alongside senior academics and representatives from government, foundations, and national programs. Speakers from leading biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies such as Moderna, Sanofi, and BioNTech are among the line-up of speakers.

The conference will feature a keynote panel led by Wolfgang Phillip, Chief Science Officer of the World Health Organization and Senior Representative of the European Commission, as well as a senior member of the UK Health Security Agency, who will explores the development of more resilient systems and global preparedness for the unprecedented healthcare challenges as in a pandemic or epidemic. Sustainability is a major focus of the event.

World Vaccine Congress is an award-winning series of conferences and exhibitions that have become the world's largest vaccine gatherings since 2000. Every year, the congress proves to be a great success, with glowing reviews and recommendations from companies and industry leaders.

The returning participant company describes the event as having "great diversity and breadth, well-organized and rich with networking opportunities."

As the largest and most established European meeting on vaccine R&D, the Congress has it all!

To find out more, please click here: The World Vaccine Congress