Announces international partnership with US-based Institute for Functional Medicine

Malaysia-based startup Emagene Life, Asia's leader in functional medicine and longevity, has announced its official international partnership with US-based Institute for Functional Medicine (IFM), the leading voice for functional medicine for more than 30 years.

This landmark collaboration aligns Emagene Life with the confident and competent practice of functional medicine worldwide, combining clinical excellence, education, and partnerships across medical disciplines.

Through this partnership with IFM, Emagene Life will launch the Emagene Academy, a regional hub dedicated to training doctors, nutritionists, and healthcare professionals in the field of functional medicine. The Academy will deliver IFM-aligned education tailored for Asia and global markets, bridging cultural and clinical gaps while ensuring the highest standards of integrative care.

"By partnering with IFM, we can expand the reach of Functional Medicine, supported by our world-first AI system "Avio Health", and train the next generation of practitioners through Emagene Academy," said Dr Shirley Koeh, Medical Director at Emagene Life.
